Upper Mountain Fork River Canoe & Kayak River Floats

Mountain Fork River

Above the lake there's great floating and fishing on the Mountain Fork River. Below the Broken Bow Lake dam the Mountain Fork turns to white water where the canoeing and fly fishing is outstanding!

The Lower Mountain fork River Float Trip is short, but very exciting, whitewater/flatwater run that is probably the most consistently flowing and best whitewater stream in Oklahoma, a state not particularly noted for whitewater rivers.

Presbyterian Falls

Starting below the Re-regulation Dam, the river is more technical than "big", with several respectable Class I & II rapids with the first two miles of the put-in. After Presbyterian Falls the river is slow and gentle making it a very relaxing float. You'll pass by "Cooper Creek", a great place to stop and swim or take a leap off the tree swing. Right at the very end you'll experience some more rapids – not too tough at all.

Canoe & Kayak Rentals

The upper mountain fork river, which is known as the re-regulation dam is the home of some great Canoe, Kayak and Tube floating. Canoe & Kayak outfitters are available throughout warmer seasons. Prepare to get wet, when you take a kayak or canoe down the 3-4 miles of rock gardens, rapids and small waterfalls

Reminders!!!

- ! Always wear a life jacket.
- ! Minimum age for children, 6 years.
- ! Water shoes are highly recommended.
- ! NO GLASS CONTAINERS ALLOWED.
- ! Take plenty of water.
- ! Whatever you take with you can be assured it will get wet or lost in the river!!
- ! We recommend water cameras and leave your wallet in the car.

Water quality is generally very good to excellent, flowing clean and clear, with a moderate to fast current when water is being released from Broken bow Lake through the re regulation dam. Watch for the red beacon below the dam. If the light is on, electricity is being generated and the flow will be high and fast. If both generators are running, then the river will be dangerously high and fast. Ask local outfitters about river conditions before driving there or before putting in.

Special note: The water is being regulated from the bottom of the lake and is cold – very cold!
